CHAPTER VIII THE LESSONS TAUGHT BY THE LOSS OF THE TITANIC One of the most pitiful things in the relations of human beings to each other -- the action and reaction of events that is called concretely human life -- is that every now and then some of them should be called upon to lay down their lives from no sense of imperative, calculated duty such as inspires the soldier or the sailor, but suddenly, without any previous knowledge or warning of danger, without any opportunity of escape, and without any desire to risk such conditions of danger of their own free will. It is a blot on our civilization that these things are necessary from time to time, to arouse those responsible for the safety of human life from the lethargic selfishness which has governed them. The Titanic s two thousand odd...
