Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Manual for Borough and Township High Schools in Pennsylvania: Issued by the Department of Public Instruction The continuous demand for copies of the first edition of the High School Manual issued in 1909 has long since entirely exhausted the supply. In the revised edition the aim has been to assemble and arrange the work in accordance with the ideas gained by experience and in keeping with approved practice in many good high schools. In collecting the material free use has been made of the National Education Committee reports, text books and general literature bearing on secondary education. The minimum requirements for admission to high schools do not constitute a course of study for elementary schools. They are intended to aid the teachers in the selection of the essentials of instruction, and to unify the work of the grades and the work of the high school. The outlines of high school studies are designed to aid teachers and directors in their efforts to make the high schools efficient. These outlines have been planned on the assumption that the school year consists of at least nine months. Teachers and pupils are not expected to accomplish in seven or eight months, what is here outlined for a school year. City high schools can of course attempt more than is here outlined, and each community can make additions suited to its special needs and industries.
